Open Governance is the way to Internet Governance

- Area: SET OF INTERNET GOVERNANCE PRINCIPLES
- Entitled by: Khaled SELLAMI
- Region: Tunisia
- Organization: Presidency of the Government of Tunisia
- Sector: Government
- Keywords:
- Doc Attached: Click here to see the doc 1

Abstract

Today a new world is being build based on new governance concept which is the open government Concept.Open governance is based essentially on enhancing transparency, accountability and participation.

Document

Open Governance is the way to Internet Governance

Today a new world is being build based on new governance concept which is the open government Concept.

Open governance is based essentially on enhancing transparency, accountability and participation.

These concepts need to be applied for internet governance :

 Participation through a multi-stakeholder governing model, where, at the global and national levels, governing bodies composed of all actors (users, NGO, Business, university and government) should take over the development of this network. This will be necessary to enhance trust in the governance of this network.

 Transparency in management of internet through public publication of all accounts and operations.

 Accountability through periodic reporting of activities, policies and strategic choices.

Such model should have priorities :

 Personal data protection : today on the net, all kinds of personal data is vehiculed with no legal protection. If there is a danger on the network today is that huge amont of personal data which could ruine people's lives if published with no consentement of owners of that data.

 Network Neutrality enhancement: The net should not be used for the interest of any government or movement or business. Especially no exclusivity on any part by any group.

 Internet gap reduction : only a limited percentage of people around the world have access and are able to use internet. The next program for the Internet governing bodies is to reduce that internet gap.